

Ansell re-branding

Ansell's DentaGlove® soon to be known as Micro-Touch® DentaGlove®

ANSELL is re-branding its DentaGlove examination glove under the Micro-Touch DentaGlove brand, presenting improved packaging while maintaining the same high quality product that we have been offering to the dental market under the DentaGlove brand.

Micro-Touch DentaGlove's new and improved packaging displays a clearer colour coded size identifier and a more patent material description. On the product side, Micro-Touch DentaGlove features the same high quality standards as before such as:

- ◆ Powder Free Natural Rubber Latex easy to don, comfortable and soft
- ◆ Ambidextrous
- ◆ Low allergenicity glove due to both low chemical residues and latex protein (total proteins levels < 50 ug/dm²) and the absence of powder.
- ◆ Thiurams and Mercaptobenzothiazoles free – reduces risk of contact dermatitis, as these are the accelerators more commonly linked to contact dermatitis.
- ◆ Mild textured finish that assures excellent dry and wet grip.
- ◆ Chlorination of the internal surface to improve donning.
- ◆ Layer packing for easier dispensing and reduction of waste – save on glove wastage.
- ◆ Statistically tested to an AQL of 1.5 for pinholes (International Standard for Surgical Gloves)
- ◆ Complies with AS/NZS 4011:1997 standards
- ◆ 5 size options for the best fit: XS-XL

All the product codes and packaging configuration has been maintained in order to ease this transition. ◆

Portable Dental X-Ray

DAVID Medimurac, Sales and Marketing Manager at Wisbey Dental, has confirmed that the Tasmanian Health Services has decided to place their first order for a number of the Port-XII portable dental x-ray units. This decision was made after a long period of consideration, comparison and independent testing of similar equipment.

The decision to buy the Port-XII was essentially based upon the excellent quality of the radiographs that it produces along with the portability and ease of operation.

The Port-XII is light weight at only 2.35Kgs compared to its nearest rival weighing over 8Kgs. ◆

Filling the gap launches new website

2007 is shaping up to be even bigger for Filling the Gap. Up until now one of the big obstacles to spreading the word about the dental volunteer service has been the lack of a website. Filling the Gap recently remedied this lack of web presence by launching www.fillingthegap.com.au

The website developed, designed, and donated by Dentist Job Search and Prime Practice and includes up-to-date information, published articles, and testimonials and of course a downloadable application form.

The dental unit at Wuchopperen Health Centre, in Far North Queensland, offers services to 20,000 Indigenous people around Cairns and the Atherton Tablelands. The Centre has two state of the art, fully equipped dental rooms at its Cairns clinic, and a mobile dental van ready to travel to Atherton and outlying communities. Historically however, they have had problems attracting dentists to provide the service.

That is where Filling the Gap came in. Filling the Gap is a charity/volunteer service set up close to a year ago. In its first six months of operation, Filling the Gap achieved a 300% increase in dental care provided with 15 new dental weeks provided by 11 volunteer dentists. It is hoped that this increase will continue with the launch of the new site. ◆
